¹ We agree with the Regional Director's finding that there is no evidence of a schism in this case. See Hershey Chocolate Corp., 121 NLRB 901, 906-909 (1958) (schism exists where there is a basic intraunion conflict, an open meeting has been called to take disaffiliation action for reasons related to the conflict, and employees have taken action to change their representative based on the conflict within a reasonable time after the conflict occurred resulting in confusion destabilizing the bargaining relationship).
